ABOUT

Computer Engineering undergraduate with a specialization in Artificial Intelligence and Data Science. I enjoy building intelligent, user-focused solutions that solve real-world problems and create meaningful impact. With a strong foundation in programming, data, and modern technologies, I'm passionate about learning, building, and continuously improving. I thrive on turning ideas into practical applications and collaborating to deliver solutions that make a difference. I actively seek practical, hands-on opportunities that help bridge the gap between academic learning and real-world industry experience.
